

SADIE HAWKINS

When her dream date turns her down for the high school Sadie Hawkins dance, a boy-crazy new girl in town hatches a plan of revenge on all the boys, but crazy may run in the family as her Aunt, the school Principal, has a vengeful plan of her own.

Synopsis

Fresh out of Seattle Psychiatric, with a suitcase full of her dearest friends: five odd, porcelain dolls, Agatha Sullivan arrives in a small coastal town to live with her estranged and not-quite-normal Aunt Marlena. Determined to start fresh and become the popular, irresistible girl she's always dreamed of, Agatha enrolls at Rocky Beach High School, where her Aunt turns out to be the Principal. Things start off surprisingly well; being the new girl means instant "it girl" status in this little town. Agatha wants to be good this time but her friends (the dolls) encourage her to do very bad things... all in the name of love. See, there's this boy named Richie. He's the one. A boy worth dying for. Just kidding. He's worth killing for, though. She's going to ask him to the Sadie Hawkins Dance.

You know, the dance where the girls ask the boys. Finally some female empowerment, right? Nothing is going to stand in Agatha's way this time, especially his awful girlfriend, Farrah. She really deserved what she got, it's not cool to be a cheating, stuck up twat these days. Yay! Now Richie's free. She asks him to the dance, but he says no. No. No? NO! Agatha's upset. Okay, she's nuts. Haunted by her past rejections and her mother's denigration, she decides she is done with boys for good. Why do girls spend their lives pining over boys who just use them and throw them away? Life would be so much easier if the boys were gone. Disappeared. Dead. Problem is, she's got a soft spot for Richie, an Aunt crazier than she is, and an AXE BODY SPRAY BOMB itching to explode. What's a girl to do? Sabotage a Sadie Hawkins Dance and kill the boys. That's what.

Agatha

Agatha Sullivan just wants the fairy tale. She yearns for the teen dream of being mega-popular and finding TRUE LOVE... and she's willing to do whatever it takes to get it. Her life growing up with a hoarding, abusive mother and being bullied at school for wearing vintage prairie dresses and having frizzy hair, squashed her dreams and left her hopeless. Her only friends, her five porcelain dolls, gave her permission to be BAD which led to an "accidental" fire that landed her orphaned and in a psych ward. With new life skills, a new home, new school and new friends, Agatha gets to start fresh. Problem is, she's still crazy under her now-tamed hair and new girl status and even worse... she's in love.

Aunt Marlena

Marlena Sullivan is the high school Principal adored by all the students she secretly HATES. She believes teenagers are all amoral, slutty, and have no direction. When she takes Agatha in, her estranged sister's daughter, she has an agenda of her own. Marlena has a locked room downstairs that Agatha is not allowed to enter. That room hides the family secret that fuels her disdain and desire for revenge on Agatha festering inside her for seventeen years.

Agatha's Dolls

This odd, mismatched group of porcelain dolls are Agatha's best friends. All rejected from their former owners, Agatha feels a kindred connection and trusts them completely. They are the only ones who haven't betrayed her and she owes them her loyalty. The dolls are Agatha's sounding board, they are her evil Oprahs, guiding her to do whatever it takes to get the happy ending fairy tale she deserves. Even murder isn't out of the question. Do the dolls ACTUALLY talk to Agatha or are they part of her really messed-up psyche? Doesn't really matter, Agatha believes in them, they have her back.

Richie

Richie is dreamy, athletic, and popular. He's a good guy with really bad taste in women. His girlfriend, Farrah, is the most heinous bitch in the whole school. After Farrah has a horrible "accident" involving a crab pot, fish hook (and Agatha), Richie mourns. So, naturally when Agatha asks him to the Sadie Hawkins Dance, he says no. Ugh. Richie finds solace with his old friend, Claire and their friendship blossoms. He agrees to go to the dance with her which breaks Agatha's heart. Looks like a happy ending will only come if Agatha convinces Richie she's his one true love... with the help of a taser to his nuts.

Claire

Claire is Agatha's first real best friend. She's a bubbly cheerleader who loves Agatha's vintage looks and loves being her guide through this new high school experience. When Agatha starts to like Richie, Claire realizes she has feelings of her own for Richie that she must keep hidden. Until she can't. When Agatha finds out that Claire is taking Richie to the Sadie Hawkins Dance, this BFF betrayal is just too much. Agatha must destroy Claire, but this nice girl has some balls of her own and fights back.
